DETAILED ACTION

Restriction to one of the following inventions is required under 35 U.S.C. 121:

- I. Claims 1-11, drawn to a circuit arrangement for searching a parent code for a target code sequence utilizing a matching circuit classified in class 703, subclass 11.
- II. Claims 12-23, drawn to a method and apparatus for parallel searching for a parent code sequence for a target code sequence, classified in class 702, subclass 19.

The inventions are distinct, each from the other because:

Inventions of Group I and Group II are unrelated. Inventions are unrelated if it can be shown that they are not disclosed as capable of use together and they have different modes of operation, different functions, or different effects (MPEP § 806.04, MPEP § 808.01). In the instant case the different inventions are directed to distinct code searching. In Group I the code searching is performed via a matching circuit which provide a binary value for each code position which is thus serial processing to produce a binary value for each code position. In contrast the invention of Group II operates via parallel processing which is well known to be a distinct code processing practice compared to single binary value processing as in the serial processing of Group I.

Because these inventions are distinct for the reasons given above and have acquired a separate status in the art because of their recognized divergent subject matter, restriction for examination purposes as indicated is proper.
